The founders of NDFB believed that if individuals were allowed to progress to the fullest of their capabilities, abilities and ambition, a strong nation would result.

1941 In 1941, three farmers - Wilfred A. Plath of Davenport, B.E. Groom of Langdon and Roy Johnson of Casselton - met with a representative of American Farm Bureau to make plans for an organizational meeting.

On November 14, 1941, that organizational meeting was held at the Gardner Hotel in Fargo. An organization committee of 14 individuals was selected to explain the objective and policies of Farm Bureau as a forerunner to the campaign for charter members.

1942 It was not an easy task. Members of the committee had to devote hours and hours meeting with farmers at the local and county level. But a steadfast belief in the organization's principles drove the enthusiasm of the committee, and a year later, on November 19-20, 1942, Farm Bureau officially organized in Valley City.

Charter members from 21 county Farm Bureaus represented the voting body at that first meeting.

2018 Today, the organization has more than 27,000 member families, and 50 organized county Farm Bureaus. The foundation on which the organization was built - a grassroots, member-driven structure - remains solid. Without the volunteers, the individuals on the local level who bring forth concerns and ideas, the system would not work.

Purpose Statement

NDFB is an independent, statewide, non-governmental, voluntary organization dedicated to improving opportunities and prosperity for all North Dakotans by advocating for our state's largest, renewable, economic sector: agriculture.

Our vision is to create lasting economic opportunity and the framework for an unsurpassed quality of life for all North Dakotans. We will do this by being the most influential champions for practices, ideas, policies, issues and initiatives that benefit our state's economic backbone: agriculture. Our intent is to help ensure unencumbered support for farmers, ranchers, entrepreneurs and the self-reliant people who have built our state, and those who continue to build upon that legacy.

Our mission is to enhance the livelihood of all North Dakota individuals, families and communities by advocating for agriculture, our state's largest, most important economic sector. Our goal is to create a better future consistent with our purpose, our vision, and supported by our core principles of individual freedoms and initiatives, self-reliance, independence, and hard work.

Board of Directors

The NDFB Board of Directors is comprised of a president, elected at large, and individuals elected from each of the nine Farm Bureau Districts, the Promotion and Education Committee Chair and the Young Farmer and Rancher Committee Chair. The vice president is elected by the full delegate body but also serves as the district director for his or her district.

Daryl Lies
NDFB President

Douglas farmer Daryl Lies was elected to the District 6 Director position in 2013 and elected as NDFB President in 2015. He and his wife, Kim raise hogs, sheep, and goats with an emphasis in show animals. He is a 4-H leader and on the McLean County Fair Board. Up until his election as NDFB President, Daryl served as the agriculture liaison to Representative Kevin Cramer. The Lies have two children.

Dana Kaldor
NDFB Vice President

Dana Kaldor was elected NDFB Vice President in 2017. He has served as the District 2 director since 2015. FAQs

How are you associated with Nodak Mutual Insurance Company?

Nodak insurance services are a benefit of being an NDFB member. NDFB started Nodak in 1946 because many farmers at the time had no options for insuring their farms. In fact, one member said, “Do you mean I have been carrying my farm in the back seat of my car?” Since then, Nodak has grown to become one of the top 50 property/casualty companies in the nation. NDFB also provides members with many other value-added benefits which can be found at ndfb.org/benefits.

How is NDFB structured?

NDFB is a member association. Membership is county, state and national in scope. It starts with a family membership in a county Farm Bureau. A portion of the membership fee stays within the county to support local initiatives deemed important by the county Farm Bureau. Another portion goes to NDFB to carry out advocacy, education and leadership efforts on a statewide level. Still another portion goes to American Farm Bureau Federation for work to enhance agriculture initiatives on a national scale. AFBF is the largest general farm organization in the nation.

How are NDFB’s positions on issues developed?

NDFB positions begin at the county Farm Bureau level, where ideas become resolutions. Members vote on these resolutions at county annual meetings, which are forwarded to the district level and then on to the state level. All resolutions are voted upon by representatives of all the county Farm Bureaus at the NDFB Annual Meeting. Resolutions passed at this level become the policy of NDFB. It is these policies that NDFB advocates for at the state legislature and Congress.

What actions does NDFB take to help agriculture thrive?

Through advocacy and education. NDFB sponsors agriculture education for youth as well as teachers through such programs as Living Ag Classroom, Special Assignment Pizza, and Food, Land and People. NDFB’s Promotion and Education is responsible for much of the outreach. The Young Farmer and Rancher program also supports the development of young leaders involved in agriculture. More information can be found at ndfb.org/edusafe.

FAQs

What are some of NDFB's more recent accomplishments?

After raising $162,000 for flood recovery in 2009, the NDFB Foundation was one of thirteen not-for-profit entities in the United States to be considered for the prestigious Summit Award by ASAE in Washington, D.C.

Approximately $40,000 is given out annually for scholarships, thanks to the work of the NDFB Foundation and our county Farm Bureaus.

In 2012, NDFB single-handedly initiated a ballot measure, adding the first "Right to Farm" language to any State Constitution in the United States. NDFB members gathered nearly 32,000 signatures over a one-year period to place this item on the ballot for the general election. NDFB, our county Farm Bureaus, and several individual members raised $158,000 to fund this initiative. The measure passed in every county in the state on a vote of 67% to 33%.

In 2008, NDFB assisted Ramsey County Farm Bureau in winning a ND Supreme Court appeal case addressing the issue of zoning for animal agriculture.

Each year, we reach thousands of students through Special Assignment Pizza, the Living Ag Classroom, Ag Day events, and other ag education programs. NDFB realized there is a lot of misinformation when it comes to food. It responded by developing a food related companion site called On Your Table. Visit www.onyourtable.org for more information.
